the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in the general population, and the incidence of mental health problems has increased in the prison population (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of prisoners. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners. The Department of Health (1999) has also published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners.

"Seems like you're always working"

"I can't go. I gotta work tonight."

"Seems like you're always working. Do you ever have time to go out?"

"Ya, but right now money is more important. Like I just bought a car and I'm saving for college. My expenses are high."

"Wow, I guess I'm pretty lucky — my parents give me all the money I need. I help around the house though."

"Since there are so many job openings, like local businesses and the mills, I might as well take advantage of them."

"Ya, but where do you find time? I already have a hard time fitting everything in, and like with a job I'd really be in trouble."

"What do you do in school that requires so much time? I don't have any problems keeping up my grades and going to work."

"Ya know, there's more to school than making grades."

"Not in my case, as soon as that bell rings, I'm headed out the door."

"Wow, I'm glad everyone doesn't think like you."

"Why is it so important that school activities should play such a big role in our lives?"

"Well, like people are needed to organize events bringing everyone together. Someone has to do it. I guess at our age we are considered adults, so we can't leave everything up to the Establishment. It seems like when students become interested and attend, maybe next time they'll get involved."

"Ya, but for a lot of people it's a big ego-trip. They get-off on self-recognition."

"Well, think of it as personal satisfaction. In your case, you're happy knowing you bought your car. In my case, I'm happy because I worked at something which I really enjoy. I get-into working with people and being involved."

"Ya know, I guess all of us are working in hopes of reaching a particular thing, whether it's in the future or now."

pleasure.

"Whadda ya wanna do tonight?"

"We could go to the show. I sorta wanna see that movie The Longest Yard."

"I already saw it. What's everyone else doin'?"

"They're goin to the game. We should go, just to see what's happenin later on tonight."

"Hey, isn't Jim having a party?"

"Ya, let's go. It should be really good. I bet a lot of people'll be there."

"O.K. It sure beats driving around McDonalds 20 times or standing in that long line outside Bartons. Half the time we really don't want pizza. We just go to see if 'anyone good' is there."

"Really! Too bad tickets sold out the first day to see Elton John. Tonight's the concert. We couldna been at the Chicago Stadium."

"Ya know, tomorrow let's go shopping at that new mall — Southlake, I think. I hear it's really big."

"Sounds good. Sunday everyone'll be at the park for a football game. Gonnà go?"

"Sure. Ya know, all our plans for the week-end are made 'cept for tonight. I think I might stay in and do my homework or watch T.V."

"Every night during the week you're in the house. How boring! C'mon, go out."

"Well, whadda ya wanna do?"

The "Whadda ya wanna do" blues plague students

1. If there is a park or large, open space in sight, flocks of people usually gather there. City and state parks provide a meeting place for groups of young people. Doug East, Cubby Smith, Bill Nowak, Ed Jimenez and Mark Plesek take time out from a tight schedule to enjoy a game of frisbee. 2. When months become cooler and outdoor activities become stifled, local restaurants attract students. They offer a place to meet new people and socialize with friends. 3. "Sunday at beautiful U. S. 30 Dragstrip," draws crowds of enthusiastic car lovers and people who love noise and excitement. 4. Students find hamburgers just the thing when cafeteria food doesn't suit their taste buds. An hour lunch break enables students to leave school grounds or stay around and catch up on studying.

1. The prom remains a tradition, and with it the removal of the garter. Senior Joyce Kandalec and Morton alumnus Dale Lambert discover a secluded corner. 2. Months before the prom, committees secure halls and bands. Reviewing charges with a Ramada Inn employee are juniors Bubba Hill and Phyl Rithaler. 3. New styles of formal wear draw attention to Morton graduate Mike Clinton as Sue Board looks on. Nancy Kostyo and date Ken Bobos share a glance too. 1920 and '30 fashions make a comeback in today's mode. 4. Morton alumnus Tim Fausch, compliments his date, senior Janica Hendrix on her unconventional appearance. Prom marks the night's students shed their blue-jeans and don formal attire.

Holiday Inn Dolton Ramada, host '75 prom

"I think everyone should attend the prom at least once. You're only in high school for a short period of time, make the most of it," commented junior Carol Lovin.

Maybe with this idea in mind, the theme, "A Time For Us," was selected by the junior class.

Couples traveled to the Ramada Inn in Dolton for the prom. Because of the decor, only a few decorations were needed. Holiday Inn, located in Harvey, hosted the after-prom. Shoes were kicked-off as attendants danced or got into the music of "November's Guest."

As day broke, jeans replaced formal attire. Couples escaped to southern Indiana, the Dunes and amusement parks.

"I thought the day after prom was a lot more fun," admitted Mary Kostoff, junior.

"Ya know, it's sort of sad knowing this is your last prom," remarked senior Cindy Lush.

Perhaps May 17, 1975 should have been a time for everyone

"Homecoming is already here. Why so early?"

"Homecoming was too early. It didn't seem right for it to be held in September," was senior Lisa Popaditch's view.

School began; two weeks later Homecoming arrived.

For the student realizing an early Homecoming, August brought flower-makings and float plans. "We have all the time in the world," was the opinion held by others. They discovered this wasn't true as they rushed to complete creations.

"We had our doubts as to whether our float would be ready. We finished just in time," contended Bubba Hill junior.

"Who's she?" What does she look like? After queen candidates were announced, these questions resounded throughout the school. The day before Homecoming, Student Association presented a slide show assembly before the student body.

Each contestant and escort was introduced. A series of slides of each girl was shown accompanied by music she personally chose. This presentation answered the preliminary questions but led to the biggest, "Who do you think will get queen?"

Association President Kevin Clyne ended all suspense during half-time festivities when he announced Sandy Dietzman 1974 Homecoming Queen.

To complete the evening, Morton defeated Chicago Fenger.

"No one knew much about Fenger's team. Our victory sort of surprised a lot of people, including the team," remarked varsity half-back John Muta.

"It really didn't matter Homecoming was earlier than usual. It still turned out successfully and everyone seemed ready," commented Kathy Krist, freshman.

Maybe this was the general opinion of everyone.

Homecoming diminishes February blahs

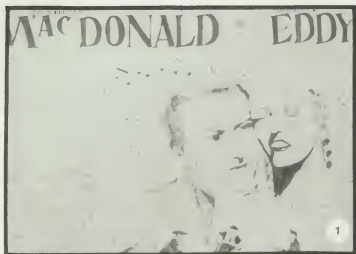

Nothing strikes harder than the mid-winter "blahs." Everyone becomes anxious for spring. To add a little gusto to the stifled activities of February, Student Association, in coordination with the Pom Pon girls, sponsored a Basketball Homecoming. It was less eventful than fall Homecoming.

Flyers, telling a little about the five senior candidates including a picture of each, were distributed to every homeroom. Voting procedures to elect Class Royalties, a boy and girl from each class, and King followed in homeroom.

The crowning of the King by Sandy Dietzman highlighted the half-time. Bob Zabek and court reigned over the Valentine's Day dance which followed the game. There, the disclosure of Class Royalties took place.

Did this newly introduced affair turn-out as hoped? Cyndi Halcarz remarked, "It turned-out better than we expected. We heard students talking about how stupid a king was, and we felt there would be no student support. During half-time though, everyone remained in the stands watching."

'Glamour of Yesteryear' revives golden era

Flashback: Jean Harlow, Betty Grable, Humphrey Bogart, the Marx Brothers, Clark Gable. The Ziegfeld Girls starring on Broadway. Night-clubs featuring Big Name Bands — 1930, the "golden era."

All these and other memorabilia of the 30's were revived December 14, the date of this year's Winter Formal, "Glamour of Yesteryear." Murals and wall shilhouettes depicting the movie musicals and chorus lines transformed the cafeteria into a ballroom scene.

"Seating arrangements really had us worried. We didn't think seats for 230 couples could be found," commented Theresa Philips, associate director of the program.

Although the formal ended at 11:00 p.m., the evening wasn't completely over. Couples traveled to area restaurants for dinner.

"I didn't get home until 4:00 a.m. I sure am tired." The following day was an official day of rest for those who chose to attend.

1. Posters advertising great movie musicals of the 1930's appear on the walls. 2. Danny Lea and Kim Kmiatek remove a centerpiece from the table to save as a memento of their evening. 3. Favorite selections of music, such as "Takin' Care of Business," incite Kathy Sarang and Mark Hester, and Dave Funk and Kathy Evanich to abandon their seats and take a place on the dance floor. 4. While others dance, Nancy Kayden and Scott Odegard sit and enjoy the company of each other. 5. After the formal, Sandy Bolek and Bob Guiden proceed to a restaurant for dinner. While waiting, they and other couples reminisce about their evening.

1. Betty Crocker Award — Cindy Hill. 2. DAR — Maribeth Patai. 3. State Wrestling Champion — Albert Walters. 4. UPI All-State Football Team — Dan Berrisford, Gregg Costa. 5. Hours of practice, study reward accomplished students

Mind over matter. Maybe this is the method used by people receiving honors and awards. Or maybe they possess characteristics and talents which allow them to gain recognition. Whatever course they follow, it doesn't come easily — work is involved.

Chosen on the basis of dependability, cooperation, leadership and patriotism, Maribeth Patai received the DAR award.

Morton's 1974-75 Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow was Cindy Hill. Having an avid interest in home economics along with scoring high on the Betty Crocker test enabled Cindy to win the nationally recognized award.

Pauline Miller and Karl Vanzo were named as Finalists in the 1975 competition for National Merit Scholarships. There were 14,000 Finalists who represent less than the top one half of one percent of all graduating high school students.

1975 Lake Shore Conference All-Star Football squad included Dan Berrisford and Gregg Costa. Pat Hudson, David Jazyk and Joe Miecznikowski were chosen as honorable mentions on the Lake Shore Conference team.

Names to UPI's All-State team were Berrisford and Costa with Hudson receiving honorable mention.

On the Associated Press squad, Berrisford and Miecznikowski received honorable mention.

Albert Walters wrestled his way to a state championship — the first in Morton's history.

One elected athlete from the football, basketball, swimming and wrestling teams received an award for his performance during the designated season play.

Steel mills, oil refineries provide job opportunities

Where are there more job opportunities than anyplace in the United States? The Calumet Region. With five large steel mills, (four ranking among the top ten in the nation's production), oil refineries and factories, jobs for men and women are accessible. Is it any surprise that Hammond is also considered the "Crossroads of America" — with more railroads running through than any other city in the nation? It's probably no surprise — it seems that to get across town, beating trains is a greater hassle than fighting traffic.

Industry and railroads don't completely dominate the area though. Lake Michigan's shores run north toward Michigan City, with Indiana

State Dunes lying in between. When the weather breaks, students prefer the beaches to school. Absences slowly climb with the temperature.

Promoting higher education, the Region provides three college extensions. Area students find it easier to save on expenses and still have a choice of going to Purdue University Calumet Campus, Indiana University Northwest or St. Joseph's Calumet Campus in East Chicago.

Even with the rise in unemployment, the Region remained fortunate. The jobless rate reported in the Region was slight compared to other industrial cities. Most employers resorted to cutting hours, creating four day work weeks, rather than laying off employees.

1. Contractors invade — trees fall, the ground is broken. The birth of a new shopping mall. Cars fill the parking lot. People from all over, not just the general vicinity, arrive to take advantage of the 83 stores. 2. Millrats — a stereotype applied to people living in the Calumet Region. One hundred thousand people work at the five steel mills. Inland alone has 23,000 employees. 3. Industries build on the lake-front and what little exists is threatened by nature. Because of high waves, Whiting may someday lose its beach. Once a well used park, Whiting Beach was closed for swimming because of contaminated water. Now huge boulders, placed by government engineers, replace sandy beaches. 4. Jump into the car, choose one of three main routes, fight heavy traffic and then — the Loop. As close as Chicago is, 24 miles, seldom do students travel there — a Christmas shopping excursion or once every four months for the average concert-goer.

Standard of Living to Decline

Rebates spur sales

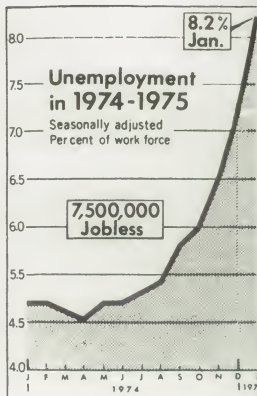

The war is over, soldiers are home and college campuses are at peace with the Establishment. So what's there to worry about in 1975? Issues in the 60's didn't directly affect high school students. Today, national matters concern all students — directly or indirectly.

How long does $10 last? A dollar or two can be easily spent at a restaurant. Three or four just for some type of entertainment, the remainder blown throughout the week on trivial items. Expenses are high, especially if the source of income comes from parents. A pair of Levis is $14, an album anywhere from $4 to $8. Complaints are heard continuously, "Wow, these pants are $28;" but consumers still buy and prices rise.

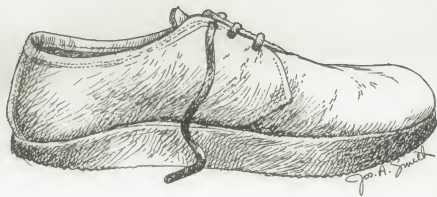

Last year the Watergate scandal stirred the emotions of many. This year a number one best seller All the President's Men appeared on the shelves of bookstores. The true account written by Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward informed the public of the details involved in the story of '74 — Watergate.

Remember the block long lines waiting for a fill-up before the gasless week-ends? Worrying about gasless Sundays is now obsolete, but finding a gas station with gas lower than 55 cents a gallon is the problem facing automobile owners. Small economy cars, like the Pacer, replaced larger ones.

Experts rip optimistic forecasts on economy

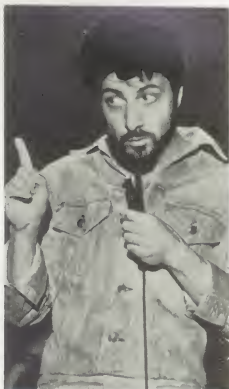

Glitter, sparkles, earth shoes, platforms dominate fashion scene

Anything goes. That's a good way to describe the styles today. Blue jeans and Earth shoes fit hand in hand. Earth shoes, a posture improving shoe, have rubber soles with the heel one inch lower than the toes. Glitter and sparkles and blue jeans and Indian gauze shirts prevailed in almost all atmospheres. Style had no relevant meaning — whether something was purchased at a boutique or a thrift store — it was considered "hip."

Avid movie goers also felt the money pinch. But despite the $3 admission for the cinemas, long lines of people stood waiting to see such movies as "The Towering Inferno," "Freebie and the Bean" and "Chinatown." Dustin Hoffman and Valerie Perrine made the headlines for their roles in the widely acclaimed "Lenny." Some couldn't afford to party as much as they liked, attend movies and concerts or "ride around," so television provided entertainment. Rhoda became a weekly goddess. Norman Lear's "All in the Family," "Sanford and Son" and Channel Seven's Movie of the Week found their way into the homes of millions.

"Godfather II took the 1975 Academy Award.

Brief confusion comes with new schedules

Each fall the first days of school bring mass confusion. Students run up and down the halls looking for room numbers and new teachers. This year another obstacle was added to the many changes each student experienced. Besides remembering to follow a new semester's class schedule, students had to keep in mind that homeroom was now after second hour. It wasn't unusual to see students going to homeroom at 8:15, only to be sent away to their first hour class.

For a long time students petitioned for open study halls, that is, not having to remain in the building. The administration agreed to try the procedure this year. Stipulations were that one had to be a senior and have a parent give written permission for the student to leave the school.

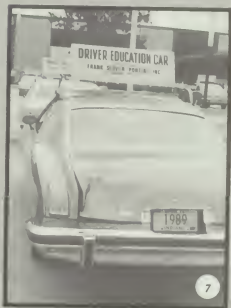

1. Early dismissals allow students such as senior Nancy Szopa to leave school early. 2. A late arrival, watched by a stray dog, takes his time gathering his belongings before first hour. Not having to go to home-room at 8:15, students sometimes arrived late for their first hour. 3. Locker bays, besides being full of students going from class to class, are filled with those who are leaving school or arriving later due to open study halls. 4. Parallel parking poses a problem for many drivers. 5. Sophomore Joelle Barron focuses an ostioscope to view microorganisms. 6. All eyes, health and safety student, freshman Stephen Josway watches blood being drawn from his finger. 7. By summer's end a few cars received dents.

Credits gained during summer allow earlier graduation

Along with warm weather, summer brings more hours of leisure. Several hundred students gave up a few hours of time in the morning to go to summer school. Some took classes out of necessity while others took them to meet requirements for early graduation.

In some history and government classes televisions brought the historic presidential impeachment hearings to the class. The proceedings and eventual resignation of former President Nixon stirred discussions on the flaws and benefits of the Constitution.

Of the approximately 700 students enrolled in school this summer, over half took driver's ed. Time spent on the road as well as in the classroom acquainted students with the risks and responsibilities which come along with driving.

1. Right timing and aim help freshman Jeff Tonkovich gain a point for his team against the opposing side. 2. "Practice makes perfect" gives encouragement and finally reward to those who never give up trying. 3. Freshmen Bonnie Ramirez and Jill Monos enjoy playing tennis even though the ball is missed often. 4. To achieve the "dry look," freshman Julie Kadar takes advantage of the much needed hairdryer at the end of class. 5. Gym assistant, junior Mark Galovic attempts a basket while frosh Dana Dugan and Mike Cowan have a chance to utilize their lessons on playing defense. 6. Laps go by quickly as freshmen Anna Anderson and Ruth Drake center their concentration on finishing the lap and completing still one more requirement for swimming class.

"After running six laps in the gym, I'm too tired for class."

— Carlos Sanchez

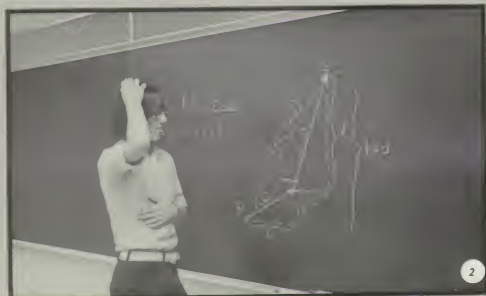

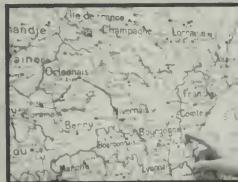

Four to six laps around the gym each day before class is a routine not every freshman boy become accustomed to. Either basketball, volleyball or crab-soccer games followed each day's workouts. Activities were designed to build up leg and arm muscles.

Gymnastics, basketball, folk dancing — girls in gym had a variety of activities to participate in. Enjoyment as well as toned muscles resulted from these sports. Through the performance of free exercise and balance beam routines, coordination was improved.

Those who are usually slow when getting dressed learned to be quick in making themselves presentable. Ringing of the bell brought shrieks from inside the girls' locker room by those who weren't quick enough.

Swimming forced many to overcome their fear of water. Learning the varied strokes and survival techniques took patience and endurance. In case of an emergency, a poll reaching halfway across the pool's width was kept nearby.

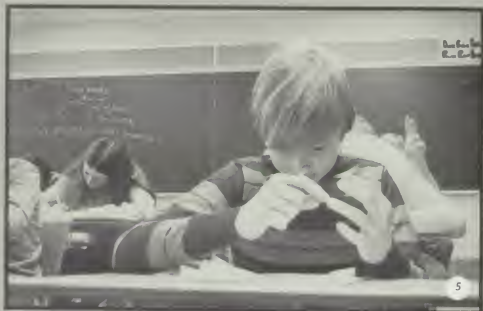

Advanced math courses challenge student minds

1. The use of a compass allows sophomore Barbara Hemmerich to construct congruent triangles and circles in geometry class. 2. Senior Mike Boucher becomes baffled as he tries to solve an analysis equation. 3. Oral exercises help those students taking general math to better understand the fundamental operations involved. 4. Freshman Keith Rowe, and students like him, find it necessary to study hours in order to work the math problems. 5. Freshman Mike Mitrowka finds it easier to count on his fingers when figuring his answers in Algebra 1. 6. A stiff neck may result for senior Ken Lelito as he tries to unsuspiciously sneak a peek at junior Randy Baranowski's test paper.

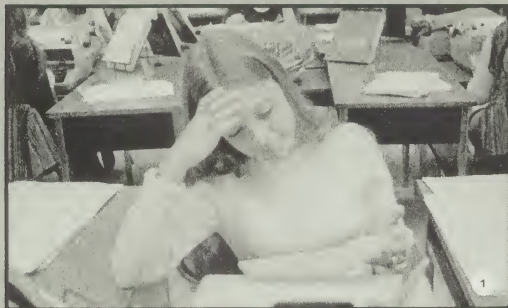

Key concepts for those in any of the math courses are either to grasp a sliver of understanding or to seek more knowledge.

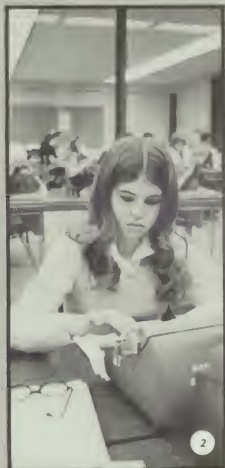

Those in general math learned basic math principles to get along in life without great difficulty. Others felt the need to expand their minds and endeavored to learn the ideas projected by algebra and geometry; some were disappointed to find algebra much more of a challenge than first expected.

Geometry students were taught to solve problems dealing with parallelograms and other figures. Learning to use a compass for constructions required practice. A few students became skillful by practicing with the compasses and rulers to solve proofs.

New typewriters, calculators update business department

1. Junior Joy Baker proofreads her typing assignment before handing in her paper for a grade. 2. Clerical practice allows senior Carol Conger to familiarize herself with the operation of an adding machine. 3. Involved in bookwork, junior Lydia Mendoza aligns the figures into straight columns during bookkeeping. 4. Students in clerical practice perform the various activities they may later find to be office routine. Activities include learning a different filing system and taking down phone dictation. 5. Shorthand symbols will decipher into meaningful sentences for junior Karen Skalka after the dictation is over and she begins to translate. 6. Struggling to keep his eyes off the keys, sophomore Tom Kmiatek concentrates on accuracy and speed during Typing 1. 7. Brief form tests, measuring the students' shorthand knowledge, are administered by shorthand teacher Mrs. Helen Slivka.

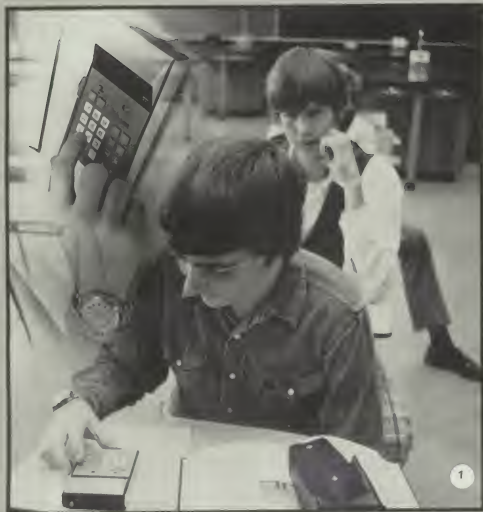

Carriages flew quicker this year as students built up their typing speeds on new electric typewriters. Those not as fortunate to have electric ones, pounded on manual typewriters.

Continuing the trend of updating the business department, new adding machines were purchased. Students could now assume that any miscalculations were due to human error — not because of faulty machines.

Department head Mr. Ernest Alexander attended a seminar of the Northwest Indiana Vocational High School Committee. The members evaluated the vocational program of Wabash Vocational High School. By analyzing short-comings, solutions and new ideas surfaced that could be applicable to other school's business departments.

1. To compensate for limited brain power, senior Kerry O'Brien uses a calculator to simplify the complex math involved in physics. 2. Senior Barb Boilek uses a generator to start the wheel spinning through a vacuum during chem class. 3. Juniors Pam Parker and Michele Pearson learn in psychology why certain tasks take longer to perform. 4. Enthusiasm varies when a topic is discussed that doesn't interest all. 5. Proper care to plants is given by junior Sue York. 6. Senior Sheri Valentine begins to relax after a field trip to the dunes. 7. Knowing all the bones of a cat is just one requirement in zoology that has to be met, as shown by junior Charice Lannin. 8. Junior Carol Lovin wears a surgical mask to limit germs in zoology class.

Dissecting animals, producing a rainbow of spectacular colors, studying the human mind and learning by observing are a variety of reasons students enroll in the many science courses offered.

Many queezy stomachs resulted when biology classes begin to dissect animals. Beginning with the simple structure of a worm, students progressed to dissecting marine life and small mammals.

Chem classes produced the miraculous beauty of a rainbow when they studied color. They also calculated many formulas to create gaseous materials.

Experiments on behavior were performed on the minds of the students in psychology classes. The results revealed true motives and reflexes of the mind.

Physics students toured the Museum of Science and Industry where they learned about lightening through the observation of special demonstrations exhibited.

"I like the idea of expressing my own creativeness."

— Lorrie Daily

Art provided students an opportunity to express their creativeness. One project some students dabbled in was capturing the beauty of models in still life paintings. Ink sketches were done by others. Art I students learned to master basic principles. Hues were blended producing new shades and color tones.

Something new had been done this year to brighten up Hammond's streets. This year the city sponsored a fire hydrant painting contest. Morton students added color and interest to the hydrants around school. Juniors JoAnne Ardelean and Nancy Kayden won second place from all the schools. Their hydrant was painted to resemble a Morton basketball player with "76" printed on his T-shirt.

1. As well as beautifying the city, senior Terry Ervin gets satisfaction from changing a common, dingy yellow fire hydrant into a colorful dog. 2. Adding finishing touch-ups, senior Jim Hawkins can proudly see what hours of work and thousands of small strokes from an ink pen produce. 3. Yarn, besides adding color, brings texture and dimension to a piece of work and makes it interesting to look at. 4. Freshman Joann Plitzel practices drawing straight lines free-hand using her whole arm to obtain a swinging motion. 5. With easel set up and charcoal in hand, senior Dave Csiciko proceeds to draw a still life display as he sees it. 6. Quiet surroundings enable most art students to concentrate better on transmitting their drawing ideas onto paper.

1. Term paper mania hits junior Sue Cudzilo as she nears completion of the English 5 requirement. 2. Senior JoAnne Treen and Leslie Olney add special visual effects to their commercial in Composition 7. 3. Letting his imagination run free, frosh Dale Snyder pretends to balance an umbrella in drama class. 4. Now that the Bible is looked at literary work by the school system, senior Bob Roquet can ponder over the meaning of a verse during Biblical Literature. 5. Split classes exist in the foreign language department due to an uneven distribution of students in different grade levels. 6. Frosh Sandy Sonaty is relieved that frosh Pam Stricklin can explain a Spanish exercise to her. 7. Going to the board gives freshman Becky Gardner a chance to practice her French grammar and sentence structure before taking a chapter test.

Diverse research paper topics empty library shelves of books

Frustration, anxiety and relief were emotions felt by juniors as the deadlines for term papers drew near. A few students were found rummaging through lockers and wastebaskets looking for note cards which seemed to disappear.

This year it was common to see students carrying Bibles with them to class. Biblical Literature was added to the English curriculum.

Pantomimes and other exercises helped to bring the ham out in everyone during drama class. Students were required to see a play every six weeks.

English students gradually lost their stage fright as they gave speeches. They started out with simple demonstration speeches and went on to inform the class on a wide range of topics.

Spanish students, along with Travel Club, worked to raise money for a field trip to Spain. Fridays were designated days for French students to be in the language lab. They practiced French enunciation.

German students celebrated "Weinachten" by having a Christmas dinner. Publishing a German newspaper for Christmas kept students busy writing articles.

Arrival of new books updates social studies courses

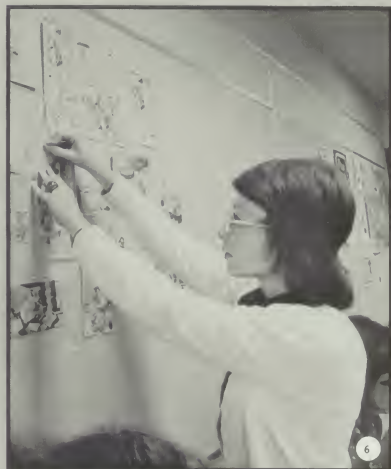

1. Freshman Jeff Zurawski watches Junior Richard Townley point out a city on the globe during world history. 2. After completion of each chapter, tests are given to determine whether the student understands the material covered in world history and pays attention during class. 3. New books, sporting the American eagle, arrived for the use of U.S. History students and replaced the older, out-of-date books. 4. Eager to add her opinion, senior Michele Congles raises her hand in time to take part in a discussion during economics. 5. A map comes in handy for seniors Doreen Markovich and Janis Roach as they point to countries with differing governments and the parts of the world they are located in. 6. Senior Vicki Ramberg pins up political cartoons to show satirical points of view on our government.

Revisions in the social studies department came with the arrival of new text books. Teachers appreciated the new books because they could present updated facts to students with more ease.

By discussions in contemporary problems class, students gained knowledge about the facts behind the world situations.

Mock elections were held in one government class to familiarize students with voting procedures. This will be of value to those able to vote in the '76 presidential elections.

Fluctuations of the stock market were observed by economic students. They followed the prices of stocks and made predictions about the nation's economy.

1. Dreading the thought of being burned, senior Ruben Torres gets ready to test the temperature of the iron. 2. Interpersonal Relations class gives junior Sandy Jaspersen and other girls insight into marriage and similar decisions concerning their futures. 3. Nimble fingers aid in threading a sewing machine. 4. Junior Joanne Posavec directs sophomore Sue Enoksen as to what part of the jacket she should pin during Clothing. 5.

Last minute touches are added by soph Julie Guernsey as she proudly shows off her "Teddy". 6. After following the recipe, sophomore Laura Loser tastes her soup, hoping her cooking is good to the last drop or finding out what she did wrong. 7. Wondering if it would be easier to get a camel through the eye of a needle, senior Lanny Eaton attempts once more to get the thread through and begin sewing.

While walking through Morton, a visitor can easily find the general location of the shop rooms. While most classes strive for some degree of quiet in order to learn, the noises emanating through various shop room walls are also part of a learning process. Whether it's the rasping of a saw or pistons moving in a motor, the knowledge gained from creating things by oneself is something that can't be learned from textbooks or lectures.

But noise alone doesn't separate shop classes from others. Many forget mechanical drawing belongs to the shop department due to its relatively quiet atmosphere.

"Since we work with tools, such as T-squares, it's a shop class," explained junior Mike Opat.

Assembling T.V. sets occupied the time of advanced electronic students. Beginner wood shop students learned to use basic tools.

With the rise of women in previously all-male positions, the department expected a larger female enrollment; yet fewer signed up than last year to the department's dismay.

1. Many hours of work and frustration paid off as junior Jeff Kolodziej finishes his project in woods class. 2. With a specific size in mind, sophomore Rick Fiala takes a piece of wood and decreases its width so that it suits the purpose he has in mind. 3. Not being discouraged by being in the minority, junior Sandy Gillespie proves a girl has as much capability as a boy to work with wood. 4. Mechanical drawing student, junior Don Johnson manipulates a drafting machine to help him draw a floor plan on the board. 5. Senior Lee Koznicki and junior Jerry Fouts pay attention to Mr. Ed Labus' instructions. 6. While cooling a rod of hot steel, junior Ronnie Rogers thinks over what his next step must be. 7. Sophomore Jaime Calderon puts away the tools he used during class and cleans up the area where he was working.

Sensitivity workshops create casual atmosphere

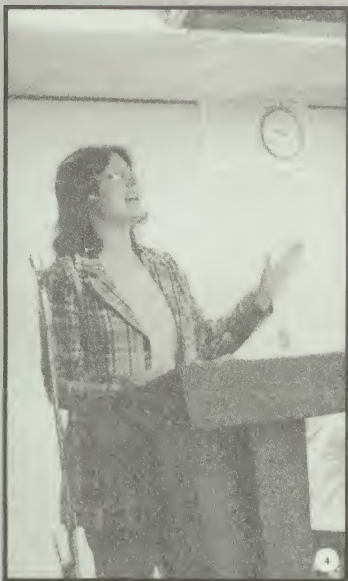

New concepts of handling Association meetings were brought into effect this year. They are called problem workshops which include sensitivity games that let the people in the Association get better acquainted, allowing them to feel more at ease.

President Kevin Clyne said, "Each meeting began with an exercise which loosened people up and a discussion starter. It worked out really well. All discussions at the meetings were relaxed, interesting, and really enjoyable."

December 14 marked the date of this year's Winter Formal, which was traditionally called the Inaugural Ball. The theme of this year's dance was "Glamour of Yesteryear." Decorations resembled those of a 1930 movie premiere.

For the students whose constant complaint was, "There's nothing to do," the ping pong and basketball tournaments helped to relieve evening boredom. Students competed against fellow classmates in each event. Winners received awards.

During an Association meeting, a serious topic of discussion shows on the faces of concerned students. 4. Secretary of Student Projects Lisa Polochak argues whether or not meetings should be open to the student body. 5. Association Officers — Kevin Clynne (Pres.), Jeani Gasparavic (Rec.), Gregg Costa (V. Pres.).

A.V. produces lunch hour movie matinees

During fourth and fifth lunch hours in the small auditorium, A.V. members could be found showing comical movies such as "Road-runner" and "Bugs Bunny". Recording concerts for band and choir also took up time for A.V. members.

Folk Club's Cheryl Sobas commented, "I think Folk Club is a very worthwhile activity. It gives students an opportunity who aren't in band or choir get involved with a musical organization."

Students with an interest in electronics were able to increase their knowledge and ability in Electronics Club. Member Dave Jazyk explained, "We explore the many aspects of the power of electricity and the many practical ways it can be used in the home."

Band receives long awaited uniforms

"We finally received our new uniforms. It took quite a few years of fund-raising activities — grapefruit sales, scrapbook sales . . . It was well worth the long wait — the red, white and blue uniforms add a lot of color to the band," stated Drum Major Nancy Kostyo.

Bringing in the holiday season, the Marching Governor Band participated in the Park Forest parade. The rain and cold didn't hinder its performance — acquiring a second in the musical division proved that.

"People and "Tonight" helped Stage Band attain an excellent rating for its performance in the NISBOVA Contest, Northern Indiana School Band, Orchestra, Vocal Association. In hopes of receiving a high award, Stage Band members began practice months ahead of the contest.

Wasting no time, Orchestra began practice in September for its annual Winter Concert. Problems in reserving the stage because of play practices, etc., caused the Winter Concert to be presented in March.

M-Club accepts unexpected female member

Women's lib infiltrated M-Club which always consisted of males who lettered in a sport. Senior Sheila Ison broke the tradition by becoming a member of the organization.

Sheila commented, "I didn't participate in a sport. I received my letter by keeping score two years for baseball games. It's great to be the only girl in the club. It does a lot for my ego."

To arouse spirit, Booster Club sold buttons resembling a football player. Planning dances, reserving buses for away games and assembling the Cheer Block were combined into one job under the supervision of Activities Chairman.

Girls who are physical fitness fanatics and who enjoy competition were found in the gym attempting a free throw, spiking a returned serve, smacking a birdie across the net or chasing a tennis ball while participating in the many activities of Girls Athletic Association.

Chem Club resumes third year of restoration

Restoring the area across the street from the MHS tennis courts was the task of Chem Club for the past years. Gradually the land was transformed into the Nature Center. Because of destruction to the area — plants and animals being killed and the fence cut — work began once again on the destroyed property.

Chemistry Club held a district meeting for the Junior Academy of Science. Dr. Lawrence Poorman spoke on space exploration.

How do you obtain coal? Trips to the strip mines in southern Indiana familiarized Geology Club members with the process by digging into the surface of the earth.

The chief intention of Mits, Morton Introduces Their School, is to acquaint the community to Morton. Members ushered for the PTA openhouse and prepared assemblies for local middle schools, aimed at familiarizing the incoming freshmen with the high school.

"Kick off Your Shoes and Attend the Sockhop" read the signs Zoology Club posted throughout the school. The money raised went toward the purchase of a retractor for the science department.

Ensemble entertains with popular song medley

To achieve a new sound, a 16-member mixed ensemble group, "Mixed Company", was organized. The group entertained area civic organizations with popular songs and show tunes from musicals.

Concert Choir was kept busy preparing for the Christmas and Spring Concerts. Choir also performed at churches and convalescent homes in Hammond.

Attending NISBOVA contest in April enabled Concert Choir to compete against other schools in Northern Indiana. Choir members chose the songs "The Lord's Prayer" and "Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair."

Selling candy helped the vocal department work toward new choir robes and sheet music.

Club provides financial aid

"I don't know anything about FEA except it's a national organization for students who are interested in becoming teachers," replied junior Allen Sherron.

Future Educators of America involves more. The money made from various sales is placed in the national fund for scholarships. If the members choose to go to college, they receive ten dollars for each year they were affiliated with the organization. The money derived goes toward the purchase of books.

"We have a good start for the purchase of chess boards, sets and clocks. The money raised from the presentations of "A Raisin in the Sun" is a great asset," stated Mr. Don Huls, sponsor of Chess Club.

Factories, concrete, pollution — who sees nature? Herpetology Club observed it in southern Indiana. The week-end camp-outs aided students in the study of reptiles existing in caves and surrounding forests.

The thought of visiting Spain during spring break provided incentive for Travel Club members. With dreams of Spanish bull-fights, candy seemed easier to sell.

NHS changes nationwide membership requirements

This year National Honor Society made its standards less rigid. Membership now requires a 3.5 grade average for seniors and a 3.2 grade average for juniors.

Saturday morning speech and debate meets gave many students points to become members of National Forensic League. After earning 25 points, a student was accepted into the organization.

With the high cost of living, Foreign Language Club sought a way to finance its annual International Dinner. Providing entertainment, members sponsored a film festival during lunch hours presenting French, Spanish, English and German movies.

New jackets, skirts, sweaters add to varsity's attire

With the financial aid of the Adult Athletic Association and profits made from the selling of "Governor" and "Govs" buttons in figures of football and basketball players, Varsity cheerleaders acquired their long-awaited uniforms — red and gray sweaters with matching pleated skirts.

Varsity squad member Yvonne Jackna commented, "It's a shame our new uniforms came in at the end of the year. We only got to wear them a few times."

The B-Team squad accompanied the Varsity Cheerleaders in the school song during basketball half time.

B-Team cheerleader Connie White stated, "It really makes me nervous to look at all those people in the stands watching us, but once you start cheering, the nervousness seems to fade."

Girls seize first place in camp twirling contest

Twirlers captured first place in contests held at Smith-Walbridge Twirling Camp this year. Deanna Huber and Michele Mosca took firsts in solo routines. The third squad member, sophomore Sue Delau placed second with her routine.

Pom pon girls purchased new uniforms and red and white pom pons. The outfits included gray flared skirts and red sweaters.

Squad members purchased material with the money in the treasury and made their own skirts.

Pom pon girls held a Candlelite Bowling at Kenwood Lanes on January 25. The girls, their parents, and friends all participated. The money raised went toward their annual Sweetheart Dance held February 14.

With half of the squad consisting of new girls, many of the veteran members still had difficulty in performing the routines in front of crowds.

Anita Harris stated, "After practicing for what seemed to be millions of hours of hard work, halftime arrived and all eyes were focused upon us. With butterflies, goose bumps, and shaky knees, we started the routine within seconds it was over."

Scarecrows, witches, tinman come alive on stage

The day finally arrived. After many hours of memorizing lines, after-school and six o'clock rehearsals the Theatre Department presented "Wizard of Oz." Excitement filled the minds of cast members as the final minutes ticked-away.

Top Hat Theatre performed its first production of the year, "Wizard of Oz," March 6 and 8. Its second production was "Carnival," May 8 and 10. In preparation for their performances, cast members traveled to Chicago to see "Nutcracker" and "A Little Night Music." This helped cast members improve their techniques and style, assuring them of a more professional type performance.

Cast member Jeff Spotten explained, "Seeing these plays helped considerably. It's always good to watch other people and learn from their mistakes."

Mortonite changes style, emphasizes graphics

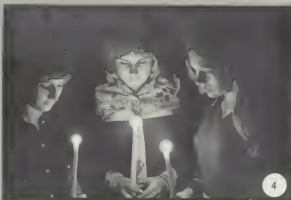

"I know last year's sponsor Mrs. Helen Stock and last year's editor Denise Schwartz would be proud of the ratings. I only hope we can maintain the First Class Rating this year," commented Managing Editor Maribeth Patai about the high rating Mortonite received from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Time brings about change — in fashions, ideas, ... This year Mortonite decided to change the paper's format and place more emphasis on graphics. Side headlines were used and all editorial material was placed on the last page to attract more attention.

Why emphasize graphics? Production editor Bob Corona replied, "It's the style of newspapers today; graphics used correctly update a paper. They also add a lot of eye-appeal."

Layout styles plague staff

Top Hat Staff adopted a whole new make-up this year, including two new styles and use of deck headlines. Modular and mosaic layout styles, alternate throughout the book. The size of the yearbook has also been enlarged to 9" x 12".

Academics co-editor Sue Pinter commented, "The new style makes the pages look better, but they are a lot harder to plan."

Mrs. Cynthia Pepelea, new Top Hat adviser replied, "Staffers were 'working toward' new ideas and ways to put the ideas on paper."

Coach Maurey Zlotnik

With Coach Maurey Zlotnik back in good health and 12 returning lettermen, the 1974 football season looked very optimistic. Opening the season against Andrean, the Morton Gridmen put to use everything they learned during the three weeks of summer practice. After an interception and 12 plays, the 59'ers scored six points on a one-yard touchdown plunge. Andrean's Ron Person kicked the extra point ending the scoring.

The Governors, determined to have a good season, defeated Gavit 17-14. Senior Dan Berrisford booted a 16-yard field goal with ten seconds remaining to give Morton its first win. Handicapped by injuries from the week before, the Gavs fell to East Chicago Roosevelt.

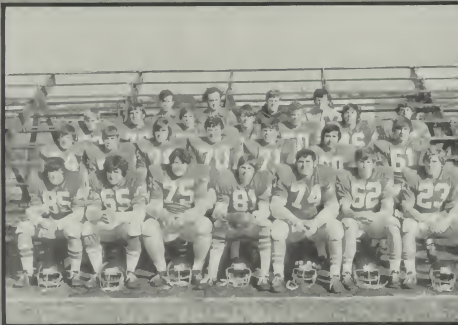

With Homecoming spirits high and injuries healed, the Gavs proved to be victorious against Chicago Fenger. After their second taste of success, the Governors went on to defeat Hammond High, E.C.W. and Tech. Gavs ended the season with a 4-3 conference mark.

Two wins opened the season for the B-team as they defeated both Gavit and E.C. Roosevelt. Gavit overpowered B-team in its second encounter by a two-point margin. This marked Gavs third defeat in eight seasons. B-team proved to be very strong winning its last three games, leaving E.C. Washington scoreless and letting both Clark and Tech score only eight points each. Finishing the season with a 5-1 record, Gavs ended their five year winning streak.

Beginning its season with a loss to Gavit, the frosh team raised its record to 3-1 defeating East Chicago Roosevelt, Gavit and Hammond High. After three victories, the frosh suffered another loss, this time to East Chicago Washington by a score of 18-6. Recupercated, the frosh team came alive to defeat Hammond Tech, Clark and Bishop Noll, ending its season with an over-all record of 6-2.

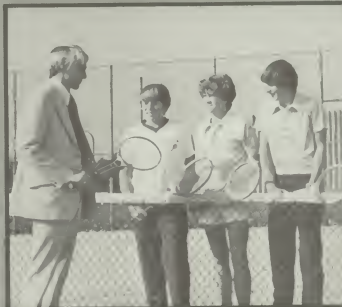

"We have a young team which should prove to be good varsity material in the future." — B-team player Dave Peters

While under the guidance of a new coach the Governor tennis team finished up the season with an impressive 6-2 conference record.

In the sectionals, the racketmen advanced to the semifinals only to be dealt a 4-1 loss by the Clark Pioneers. To advance into the semifinals the Gavs defeated Gifford 4-1 then shut-out Tech 5-0.

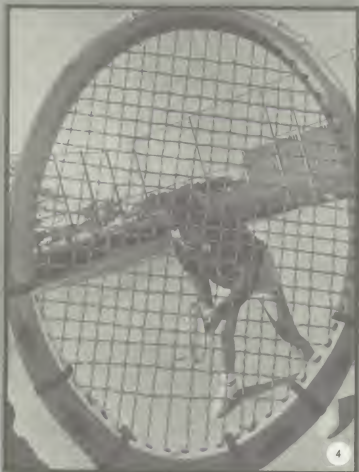

"I am happy to have had such a good group of boys who improved throughout the season," commented Coach Darrell Johnson on his first year at Morton.

There is a large volume of literature on the impact of the environment on the health of the population, and the impact of the environment on the health of the population is a well-known fact.

These two minor secondary alcohols are also easily converted to small amounts of the corresponding aldehydes and ketones. These compounds are not so important.

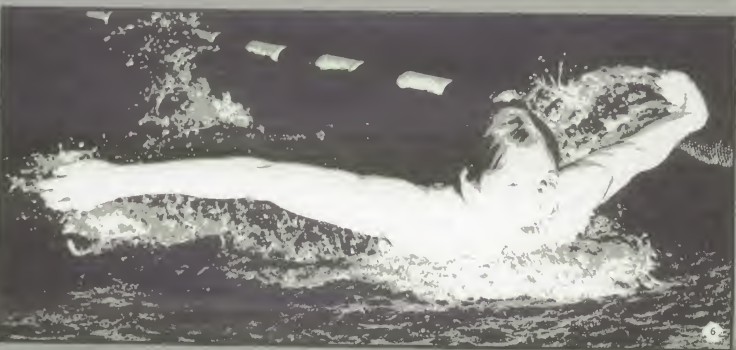

Supplementary Table 1 shows that Japan has a low overall burden of disease (36.2 years) compared with a much higher (54.2 years) Alzheimer's disease-specific burden. A total account for the Alzheimer's disease-specific burden for the country is 19.7 years (range 1.0–40.0 years), the low state stands out with a total of 0.2 years (range 0.0–0.4 years).

"We lacked consistency throughout the season because we were a young ball club." — Coach Greg Jancich

"We had a very young 14-15 middle age group. We also were inexperienced when it came to fundamentals," said Coach Greg Jancich.

Coach Jancich and head coach played the Morton team through a three game slate. Morton lost the first game to the Eagles, but then won two of the three games. The team's record of 2-1 was a good start for the season.

Pictures, robes, announcements, trips to the counselor, ditch days, commencement — senior year.

After 11 years of education about 500 seniors began preparation for graduation. Through the morning, new commencement students, original Red and Gray teams, followed the principals of senior year. Also, party people appeared, carried a large streamer banner during the lunch ceremony.

Speech presented by representatives from various colleges added to last graduate decision making for college-bound students.

Twelve years and a school's history, the graduates' emotions were high. "I'm going to make her remember me," said one. "Thank goodness!"

Building a basketball team is no easy task. The Mustangs, under Coach and Head Coach, have been working hard to build a team that can compete at the state level. The team is currently in the process of recruiting new players and is looking for students who are interested in playing basketball.

Officers emphasize fund-raising projects

"I think more of the students are interested in this year's activities. There's a larger involvement in money making projects now that the necessity for the money is so apparent," viewed Miss Pat Lipski, sophomore class sponsor.

The sophomore class started early and worked hard to maintain a sense of organization while changing steadily from project to project.

Early in the school year money well-needed went into the class treasury. A Wednesday night dance attracted many Morris students. As the cafeteria filled, so did the cash box, to the delight of class sponsors and interested sophomores.

A candy sale was set for spring with the hopes of doubling the profits previously made. Button sales and car washing provided work for the remainder of the school year.

1. Despite the chilly weather sophomore class secretary Theresa Cohn enjoys the snow. 2. Vice-president Brian White work side by side in college to build class spirit. 3. Morris's Carrie Kivlen, Linda Kowalczyk and Julie Mastromachi represent their classroom in early class and board class meetings. 4. Absentee Miss Pat Lipski with Mrs. Rose Freeman enjoy attending class meetings in Morris's early class and board class.

Orientation familiarizes 550 newcomers to high school

Hundreds of freshmen arrived for orientation last August. The anxiety of beginning high school life reached its peak as the freshmen realized they would soon know whether their fears and imaginations had any real base. "I was most afraid of not being able to find my class," said freshman Kelly Tolson.

Soon after school started, information the class officers and teachers took care and soon filled all the positions. The new officers and sponsors organized a "cuddle walk" which opened the treasury with $700,000.

Within weeks the freshmen became familiar with the school and things became routine. "I figured out that I shouldn't have been scared. High school is not very different from middle school," said Terry Chisom.

1. Freshmen Class Officers: Vice President Gailene Hestley, President Jane Kinnel and Secretary Christa Currey presented monthly dues money and the treasury for the year. A 50¢ "cuddle" incentive and "cuddle" incentive money were also presented. Freshmen who arrived with the year will be awarded a "cuddle" incentive. Money given for the year: 1. Freshmen awarded "cuddle" incentive: $100,000 and 2. Freshmen awarded "cuddle" incentive: $100,000 and 3. Freshmen awarded "cuddle" incentive: $100,000.

Social worker strives to improve student-family relationships

Students having trouble in school as a result from difficulties at home are receiving help and guidance from Mrs. Esther Stern. The Juvenile Delinquency Program is government subsidized and is being experimented in the Hammond Public School system for the first time. Mrs. Stern stated, "My primary concern is the students. My job is to find out why kids have problems in school and to work with students and parents to correct them. I'm not a truant officer, but I help students in any way I can."

One change occurring this year was the difference in time of homeroom. It was moved from 8:15 to between second and third hours.

The administrations' reasoning for this was to reduce tardies. Also, seniors having a first or second hour study hall did not have to report to school until 10:15 a.m.

A course in Biblical Literature was introduced in the fall by Mrs. Hazel Stockdale. To have the course approved, Mrs. Stockdale spent two years organizing the class before taking the plans to the Board of Education. The course deals primarily with the Old Testament and Mrs. Stockdale is pleased with the direction the course is heading. "I think people are interested. Enough students signed up first semester to warrant a class scheduled for second semester. Hopefully the course will continue to grow."

Are you ready???

To face the future

Are you ready???

To face eternity

The Bible plainly shows that there are only four things you must know to be saved.

1. You are a sinner.

Romans 3:23—"For all have sinned . . ."

2. God has a price on sin—death and hell!

Romans 6:23—"For the wages of sin is death . . ."

3. Jesus paid the price.

Romans 5:8—"But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

4. If you will receive that price as your hope for Heaven and receive Jesus as your Saviour from sin, He will make you His child and will take you to Heaven when you die.

Romans 10:9—"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

... "Ya know, I guess all of us are working in hopes of reaching a particular thing, whether it's in the future or now." ... After thinking about what had been said between the two, a friend of theirs asked himself what he was working toward. He knew he couldn't put himself in the "working after school" category or the "working to promote involvement" set. But inside he knew he was working toward something which couldn't be exactly pin-pointed. He realized there were concrete things people worked for — awards, cars, clothes, and there were things which couldn't be seen but known to the person — an education, improvement of body and mind, self-happiness. He discovered that although his goal was different from his freinds', the same steps are taken; you begin it; consistently work for it; and finally achieve what you had been after. Tossing it over in his mind, it hit him — it wasn't a big goal at all. Everyday he subconsciously worked to accomplish trivial things which make up a day. He concluded that we are all working toward something — whether we know it or not.

We extend our appreciation to the individual people not belonging to the staff but whose assistance aided in the production of the book. Joe Farmer and John Elo for their help with the sports section; Dave Krucina and Kevin Clyne for contributing photographs; Mr. Edward Andros for underclass pictures; Mr. Oscar Bodie for senior pictures; Compass for several sport shots; Time Magazine, Compass and The Times for news material used in portraying national events in 1974-75; Clark High School's Fred for always being around when he wasn't needed; Harry Dudzik, photographer, for performing super-human tasks and being an all-round superman; Pat Lindemann, sales representative, for her constructive criticism; and Mrs. Cynthia Pepelea, adviser, for everything. We certainly hope her first year isn't her last.

After suffering through four deadlines, 1250 copies of the 1975 Top Hat were produced at American Yearbook Company in Clarksville, Tennessee. In the construction of this book, 10 pt. optima was chosen for copy blocks; 8 pt. optima with italics for caption blocks. 24 pt. news gothic bold was used for headlines; headline quotes were 18 pt. news gothic bold. Title and division page type was 48 pt. cooper black condensed. Index was 6 pt. optima. Pictures and type were printed on 80-pound gloss. Endsheets were slate gray. 30% and 60% gray and 100% black densities were used throughout the book.

Thank goodness it's over!
